Supporting Possible
NYU Stern Annual Fund Report Fiscal Year 2018
Thank you for supporting the Stern Fund—a critical resource for the School. Your contributions help provide student scholarships and foster the intellectual inquiry that puts Stern at the forefront of business education in a rapidly changing business world. This past year your contributions added up to $5.7 million, with support from 8,585 alumni and donors, including 1,682 new donors. Despite our tremendous progress, Stern has work to do to match our peer schools in the ability to meet the financial need of all students. We hope very much that we can count on your support this coming year.

Your gifts make a difference and we are pleased to present the FY18 Annual Fund Report to highlight the ways in which the Stern Fund impacts students, faculty, and alumni professional development.

Please know that we appreciate all you do for Stern and are grateful for your generosity.

Thank you,

Raghu Sundaram

Alumni Engagement
Cultivating Alumni Professional Development

The Stern Fund provides resources to support lifelong learning and professional development for our global alumni population. During fiscal year 2018, Stern’s Affinity, Industry, and Regional groups hosted a variety of events, including the inaugural Taste of Stern, showcasing alumni entrepreneurs and leaders in the food and wine industries, and the Author Lecture Series, featuring faculty with newly published books on topics such as how companies stay relevant in a fast-changing world and common traits among breakthrough innovators. To engage with alumni, Dean Raghu Sundaram traveled to cities around the globe to share the latest innovations happening at Stern. In the spring, Stern hosted a memorable two-day Reunion program for alumni who graduated in 2017 or in class years ending in a ’3 or ’8. The weekend included class receptions, a Dean’s Welcome Address, faculty talks, career workshops, a fireside chat with Professor Ed Altman, and an evening celebration at Tavern on the Green in Central Park. Reunion, a Stern tradition that grows stronger every year, enjoyed record turnout, and the 2018 Reunion Committees collectively raised over $2.7 million to support Stern students, faculty, and programs.

The largest allocation from the Stern Fund supports scholarships for Stern undergraduate and MBA students, which allow us to attract the best and brightest applicants, many of whom otherwise could not afford a world-class Stern education. Since 2010, Stern has increased donor funded scholarship award dollars by 192 percent thanks to support from alumni like you. With your help, we can continue this wonderful progress.

This year, scholarship recipients who are part of the Breakthrough Scholars Leadership Program won the Stern International Studies Program Competition and presented their winning business plan to a panel of faculty and alumni judges as well as a room of over 600 of their peers.

Varun Chopra (BS ’19), serving as an orientation leader alongside fellow Sternies Karina Voronick (BS ’19) and Avni Bodwadkar (BS ’20), welcomed new students to the Stern community. On his Stern experience, Varun says: “Being a Sternie means being a leader at the forefront of the business world. It also means being a part of a network of successful alumni who continue to lift each other up even after graduating.”
Incoming Langone Part-time MBA students participate in Langone LAB, a high impact introduction to the Langone MBA Program for working professional students.

Student Experience
Building Community and Diverse Opportunities for Students

Gifts made to the Stern Fund support student programming, clubs, conferences, and learning initiatives that enrich the student experience and community. A selection of programs funded by alumni contributions include:

- The Diversity in Business Forum, a partnership between the Undergraduate and Graduate Offices of Student Engagement, which brought in professionals to discuss diversity and inclusion topics in relation to students’ job searches and career development.
- An Inclusive Leadership Workshop for MBA students, which offered training in empathetic leadership and inclusive management skills.
- Inclusive Community, a peer mentor program facilitated by the Undergraduate College, which encouraged student conversations on diversity, identity, and the Stern community.
- A wide range of undergraduate and graduate student clubs such as the Entertainment, Media and Sports Association, the Graduate Finance Association, the Graduate Marketing Association, Undergraduate Stern Women in Business (USWIB), and the Military Veterans Club, which hosted a speaker series featuring prominent military veteran business leaders.

In February, Undergraduate Stern Women in Business hosted their seventh annual conference, “Own Your Future.” Centered around female empowerment, this well-attended conference brought together undergraduate women from different universities for a day of guest speakers, workshops, and coffee chats, where they discussed personal and professional development and gained networking experience.
Contributions to the Stern Fund assist in recruiting top-tier faculty and financing ventures, research, and conferences that ensure Stern’s place at the forefront of the changing business world. This year, alumni gifts supported research funding for centers across Stern, including the Fubon Center for Technology, Business and Innovation, the Salomon Center, the NYU Stern Urbanization Project, the NYU Pollack Center of Business and Law, and the Volatility Institute. In the fall, Stern hosted the annual Fintech Conference, a day-long forum convening researchers, regulators, industry executives, alumni, and students to debate and discuss the ways technology is reshaping the finance industry. This past spring, NYU Stern Leadership Development hosted its first “Leadership in Crisis” simulation, a day-long program where MBA students worked with experts on how to manage real-world crises from the perspective of business executives.
