Financial Reporting and Disclosure

ACCT-GB.6302.01

Fall, 2013 Class Schedule

Tuesday and Thursday, 2:00 – 3:15 and 3:30 – 4:45

Tuesday, September 3 - Thursday, December 13

The course will cover an in depth examination of financial report disclosures, with an emphasis on how firms use financial reporting to achieve such ends as managing earnings or keeping debt off of the balance sheet. By the end of the course, students will have an appreciation for what information is missing from the primary financial statements, the knowledge to understand the content of important footnotes, and the tools to conduct financial analyses using the information contained therein. The course will use a combination of textbook problems, Harvard cases, and most importantly, actual financial report disclosures. The course is geared for students going into public accounting, investment banking, equity research, or consulting. The week-by-week schedule is as follows:

course materials

1. The course text is Financial Reporting and Analysis, by Lawrence Revsine, Daniel W. Collins, and Bruce Johnson (Prentice Hall), 5th Edition. I refer to the text as RCJ. The text is recommended; it is not required.

All other course materials are contained on the course's NYU Classes site.

2. Powerpoint slides, examples of financial statements, and articles from the popular press can be found on the course's NYU Classes site under Course Documents, organized by topic.

3. Solutions to all RCJ problems can also be found on the course's NYU Classes site under Assignments.

4. Problems from RCJ that will be assigned for homework can be found on the course's NYU Classes site under Assignments.

Grading and assignments

Grading is as follows: Midterm 100 points, Mini-Cases 80 points (8 cases * 10 points each), Final 100 points, Total 280 points. Class participation will be then be taken into consideration to adjust grades where appropriate. The midterm and final are both in-class, open book and open note.

The cases are take-home mini-cases or quizzes (approx. one page) on each topic that we cover (i.e., dealing with a specific disclosure). They will be handed out on Thursday, and due the following Tuesday, and must be done individually.
